Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations 1961

Article 3

1. The functions of a diplomatic mission consist, inter alia, in:

- (a) Representing the sending State in the receiving State;
- (b) Protecting in the receiving State the interests of the sending State and of its nationals, within the limits permitted by international law;
- (c) Negotiating with the Government of the receiving State;
- (d) Ascertaining by all lawful means conditions and developments in the receiving State, and reporting thereon to the Government of the sending State;
- (e) Promoting friendly relations between the sending State and the receiving State, and developing their economic, cultural and scientific relations.

2. Nothing in the present Convention shall be construed as preventing the performance of consular functions by a diplomatic mission.

Ambassadors

Working Conditions - Working Time Directive

Working Time Directive

To protect workers' health and safety, working hours must meet minimum standards applicable throughout the EU.

The EU's Working Time Directive \(2003/88/EC\) requires EU countries to guarantee the following rights for all workers:

An ambassador serving abroad symbolizes the sovereignty of his/her home country and serves as the personal representative of its head of state. Ambassadorial duties include negotiating agreements, reporting on political, economic and social conditions, advising on policy options, protecting home country interests, and coordinating the activities of all home country agencies and personnel in the host country. By virtue of the position, ambassadors abroad rely on the support of and are afforded special courtesies by the entire mission staff. These courtesies apply to the ambassadors of other countries as well.
